

Deepwater Wind, Proposed South Fork Wind Farm

Deepwater Wind is proposing to construct the South Fork Wind Farm, 30 miles east of the coast of Montauk, which will consist of 15 wind turbines and a subsea transmission system that will generate 90 megawatts of clean, renewable energy.

Deepwater Wind is seeking easements from the Town of East Hampton for a proposed cable landing, to connect the export transmission cable from the South Fork Wind Farm to the LIPA substation, beginning at Beach Lane in Wainscott and routing through the town to the substation at Cove Hollow. The underground cable will be installed at a depth of at least 30 feet below the beach surface using horizontal directional drilling.
